Brit woman denies false rape claims

A 19-YEAR-OLD British woman has pleaded not guilty in a Cyprus court to making a false claim that she was raped by 12 Israelis at a holiday resort on the Mediterranean island.

Her defence lawyers say investigators used "oppression" to make her retract the allegation that she was gang raped at an Ayia Napa hotel last month.

Cypriot authorities strongly deny that the retraction was coerced, saying she volunteered the statement in writing.

Michael Polak, of the group Justice Abroad which is assisting in the legal defence, said: "The teenager's case is that she has not lied about being raped and the oppression was used by the Cypriot police in order to get her to retract her rape allegations."

Five Israelis were initially freed July 25 after no evidence was found linking them to the case.

The remaining seven were released three days later after cops said the woman retracted the rape allegations.

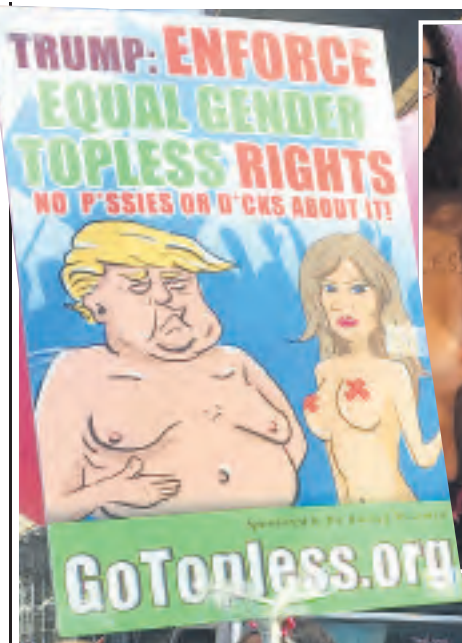

A judge set a date for the start of the trial for October 2 and released the woman on bail after surrendering her passport.

Iran cages dual nationality 'spy'

IRAN has jailed a British woman for 12 years after accusing her of spying for Israel and "acquiring illegitimate wealth".

Anousheh Ashouri, a dual British-Iranian national, was among three people whose sentences were announced on Iranian state TV by judiciary spokesman Gholamhossein Esmaili.

She received 10 years for the spying charge - which authorities said she did on behalf of Israel's Mossad spy agency - and a further two years for "acquiring illicit funds".

HUNDREDS of topless women descended on New York yesterday in a naked protest.

The 2019 Go Topless Pride Parade protestors are fighting for the right to be bare-chested in public.

Along with the women, several men - hoping to get their leg over - joined the cause by wearing bras or going topless themselves.

New York legally permits women to be topless, but police still blocked off the parade route.

The women also shouted about President Trump.

One onlooker said: "A whole fine lotta teats out there today - yessir!"

CIVIL WAR!

MPs lining up to thwart Brexit could start conflict, experts warn

BRITAIN could plunge into CIVIL WAR, experts have warned, after opposition MPs say they have agreed to try to block a no-deal Brexit by passing legislation in Parliament.

A meeting between those opposed to no deal was called by Labour leader Jeremy Corbyn.

A joint statement afterwards did not detail how or when legislative attempts would be made, but Green MP Caroline Lucas said it was the best way to stop a PM "careering towards" no deal.

The statement also said using a vote of no confidence to bring down the government remained an option.

In the 17th century, attempts by Parliament to assert its authority over King Charles I led to years of civil war and the king eventually had his head chopped off.

Last night one constitutional expert said: "When Parliament and the Government of the day have clashed head-on like this, it's not been pretty.

"Never mind Brexit - Britain should be braced for WAR."

The UK is set to leave the European Union by October 31 and Prime Minister Boris Johnson has promised to stick to that date even if he cannot agree a deal with Brussels.

Ms Lucas - who caused outrage earlier this month by suggesting an all-white, all-female Cabinet was needed to block the PM - said "the legislative way forward" was "the most secure way to try to extend Article 50, to get rid of the October 31 deadline".

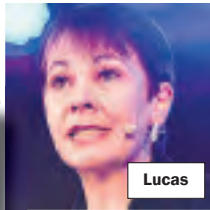

Lib Dem leader Jo Swinson said after the meeting a no-confidence vote "remains a last resort" while the SNP's Ian Blackford said that the meeting had been "positive and productive".

Gerard takes aim at gun snowflakes

GERARD Butler has taken a swipe at snowflakes who whine about guns and violence in his movies.

The Scottish actor is a producer of many of his projects, including new film Angel Has Fallen, Olympus Has Fallen and London Has Fallen, which all follow a Secret Service agent battling threats to the U.S. president.

Each film has lengthy fight scenes and Angel Has Fallen includes a long gun battle in a hospital as terrorists attempt to top the president, played by Morgan Freeman.

In an interview, Butler (above), 49, said: "We are always talking about it. You can't make these movies without guns, but I don't think that there is a ridiculous use of gun in these movies, more actually explosions than guns."

"It's an action movie, so we are not going to make it with squirly guns or custard pies."

"We are conscious but it can't stop you making the movie you're going to make."

Parents giving kiddies crisps for breakfast

A STUDY has found that six per cent of parents dish up CRISPS to their kids for breakfast.

A nationwide poll of 2,000 parents with children in primary school found that 120 parents confessed to giving their kids a bag for brekkie.

Incredibly, 65 per cent of the parents quizzed said their kids often skipped breakfast altogether – with the average child missing the "most important meal of the day" a staggering 60 times a year.

For those who eat breakfast every day, 54 per cent had high-sugar cereals, with 31 per cent tucking into toast with toppings like chocolate spread.

Yet nine-in-10 parents said they worried that their children were eating too much sugar, in the poll by Flora.

Bungling Travolta gives award to TRANNY Taylor

MOVIE legend John Travolta has been ruthlessly mocked online after appearing to confuse Taylor Swift with a DRAG QUEEN.

The oblivious Grease star went to hand the VMA for the Video of the Year to Jade Jolie, who is the spitting image of the super star singer – apart from having a COCK.

Taylor finally got her hands on the prize for You Need To Calm Down after the actor eventually realised his mistake.

He smiled as he gave Ru Paul's Drag Race sensation Jade a hug as the award finally went to the American crooner.

Viewers didn't take long to bring his error to everyone's attention.

"John Travolta giving Taylor Swift's award to Jade Jolie FULLY thinking that it was her is the best thing that happened all night" wrote one.

Another said: "John Travolta mistaking Jade Jolie for Taylor Swift has restored my spirits for the next three hours."

And another user wrote: "That's the best thing to happen at the VMAs forever – Mr Travolta you are a legend."

Bucks Fizz star makes mind up to be Brexit MP

A FORMER star of Eurovision winners Bucks Fizz has been selected as a candidate for the Brexit Party.

Jay Aston Colquhounis (above) will run to be an MP in the London seat of Kensington, currently held by Labour.

Bucks Fizz won the Eurovision Song Contest in 1981 with their song Making Your Mind Up and Ms Aston Colquhounis was in the band from 1981 to 1985.

The 58-year-old said: "I used to live in Kensington and it still feels like home."

"I want to stand for the Brexit Party and fight to uphold democracy for the sake of the people."

"As an MP, I will work to rebuild trust and help the Brexit Party make the necessary reforms to unite the country after we break free of the European Union."

The party held a rally in Westminster yesterday to announce their new candidates for a potential general election.

Kelly, who found fame on The Big Breakfast, said: "I've spent 10 years taking the garden back to its bones and planting crab apples, roses and a wildflower meadow. We have apples and pears, and make juice."

"Every spare moment I'm outside, hair in a scrunchie. No bra. Bare feet."

Kelly, 39, who now hosts the Drivetime radio show on Heart London, also said boyfriend Jeremy Parisi has to stop her eating too many desserts.

The model revealed she found her love of gardening after buying her 15th century Kent farm house, where she spends the weekends - with weekdays spent living in London.

She said that when she presents the Saturday breakfast show on Heart she gets up at 4.30am, adding: "Before we go on air at 6am, we discuss the papers and TV."

"I'll grab a sausage roll for breakfast or someone will do an Egg McMuffin run, then at 10am I jump in the car again and drive to my house in Kent, popping into M&S on the way for stuff for the barbecue."

She added: "I know I'm fit, so I never think about my shape."

"I lost a lot of weight when my father passed away but when I'm happy the pounds pile on. The bigger I am, the happier I am."

"But then sometimes I'm so happy, I'm eating dessert every night and that can't be good. Jeremy keeps me on track."

She has lost weight recently though after revealing on Loose Women how each of her boobs weighed around 1kg and that her doctor advised her they were causing her to suffer from back pain.

SEX WORKERS SHOULDN'T BE PUNISHED IN BRITAIN

MORE people believe sex workers should not be punished for operating out of brothels, or on the street, than those who think they should.

Forty-nine per cent of British people surveyed are in favour of decriminalising brothel-keeping, an offence punishable by up to seven years in jail.

Meanwhile, 44% of people surveyed feel that sex workers should not face prosecution for street solicitation, for which they can be fined up to £500.

Less than a quarter of those surveyed by market research firm Survation are against relaxing police enforcement on brothels, while 27% are opposed to ending penalties for street solicitation.

Nick: Look on the bright side, Britain!

TELLY presenter Nick Knowles believes the UK is "a much better nation than we think" and that Britain needs to unite after the divisions of Brexit.

The DIY SOS star (above) said that the community spirit and willingness to help others that he saw working on his show indicates the true nature of the nation, and there is "natural good" in the UK.

Nick, 56, said: "We hear a lot on the news about disaster, people being ripped off or attacked, and so much about all the divides – rich/poor, north/south, Brexit/Remain."

"So the narrative becomes that community doesn't exist any more."

"We're a much better nation than we think. There is natural good in the country which is overlooked."

"Brexit has drawn the country in opposite directions. Whichever way it goes, we have to concentrate on mending the damage to the country."

Flasher had 'industrial' vodka binge

A FLASHER who exposed himself in front of drinkers at a packed city centre pub has been spared jail.

Abdul Choudhury, 34, had drunk "an industrial amount of vodka" when he pulled his trousers down near shocked onlookers.

North Staffordshire Justice Centre heard Choudhury was near the Market Tavern (above), in Hanley, when the he exposed himself at 9pm on August 5.

Prosecutor Stuart Quinn said: "The defendant exposed himself in full view of members of the public and CCTV cameras. It seems to be a case of taking too much to drink."

The defendant, of Cobridge, pleaded guilty to exposure.

Choudhury was fined £350 and must also pay £135 court costs.

District Judge Kevin Grego told Choudhury: "There was neither sense nor reason to your behaviour. You said you had drunk an industrial amount of vodka that day. Your contribution to society that night was to expose yourself."

HIGH CRIMES!

A GROUP of metal detectorists were taken to hospital after unknowingly eating cakes apparently spiked with cannabis – in a village called High Melton.

The treasure hunters started laughing, dancing and singing before 13 men and women fell ill at Coil To The Soil's rally on Saturday.

A detectorist spokesman said: "People could have died. It was lucky that no children or people on medication with serious health problems ate the cake."

A 48-year-old woman from County Durham has been arrested and bailed.

Julian Evan-Hart, editor of Treasure Hunting Magazine, said it was a "dreadful incident" but he did not believe that it was malevolent.

"I think it was an irresponsible, poorly thought-through joke," he said.

ILL FEELING: Village of High Melton

"This isn't a poor reflection on our hobby, the dig organisers or anyone else involved the planning of the event. It's just a case of random lunacy."

A large fleet of medical staff were called to the scene in the village near Doncaster, South Yorks, including eight ambulances, a rapid response vehicle, two doctors, two clinical supervisors and a Hazardous Area Response Team.

Yorkshire Ambulance Service said two people were treated on the spot. A spokesman added:

"Yorkshire Ambulance Service received an emergency call just before 6:30pm on Saturday to reports of a number of people feeling unwell at a national metal detecting event."

"They had become unwell after ingesting an unknown substance."

Mr Evan-Hart said that the cakes were homemade, and had not been sold. Police said the 13 people admitted to hospital – who had come to the event from various places across the country, were later discharged.

WHEN Jess Impiazzi made her debut as a topless model in Midweek Sport we knew she was something special.

Her stunning looks, striking eyes and bra-busting 32E boobs were enough to convince the judges she was a worthy winner of the prestigious Search For A Star competition in 2009.

From that moment on the 29-year-old has graced the pages of this paper many, many times and revealed all about her naughty sex life and aversion to wearing knickers.

So it was an absolute pleasure when, like many other Sport glamour babes, Jess, from Hazelmere, Surrey, went on to find fame elsewhere.

Since whipping her kit off, Jess has appeared in numerous reality TV shows including Ex On The Beach and Celebrity Big Brother.

Which just goes to show if you want to get on in the world the best way to go about it is to get 'em out!

And you're even more likely to succeed if you whip your busters out in the pages of the Sport!

DEAD CAT'S HEAD SENT TO EPSTEIN PROBE MAG BOSS

A CAT'S head appeared on the front lawn of a top magazine editor's lawn – just as his rag had started to probe pervert Jeffrey Epstein's finances and noncory.

Back in 2006, as the Feds compiled accusations against the money manager, John Connolly, a contributing editor for Vanity Fair, headed out to Palm Beach, Florida in search of a story.

But as Connolly sat down with women who had worked for Epstein his editor, Graydon Carter, called him to report the gruesome cat head in the front yard of his Connecticut home.

Connolly said: "It was done to intimidate, no question about it."

He said he decided to stop reporting on Epstein and later wrote a non-fiction book about the disgraced financier with bestselling crime novelist James Patterson.

But Carter said that the magazine never ceased its reporting of Epstein because of any

By ROY DURRIDGE
news@sundaysport.co.uk

perceived threat, and it wasn't the first time he allegedly intimidated the editor, according to Connolly.

A few years earlier, Carter assigned reporter Vicky Ward to look into the source of Epstein's wealth, and why he was always seen spending time with younger women.

Exploited

Ward had interviewed two sisters, Maria and Annie Farmer, who claimed Epstein and his girlfriend Ghislaine Maxwell lured and then sexually exploited them.

Maria told of how Epstein and Maxwell allegedly sexually assaulted her together in an Ohio apartment, and Annie recounted how, she claims, the veast molested her at his New Mexico property.

Epstein showed up at Vanity Fair's offices and made it clear to Carter that he was not happy, Connolly said.

The financier pleaded with Carter to kill the story and called him multiple times after his visit, shooting down any allegations of misconduct.

Ultimately, the story did run in March 2003, titled The Talented Mr Epstein – but with zero mention of the sisters' allegations.

THREATENED: Carter probed nonce Epstein

Scanners spark trans' cock fury

AIRPORT bosses are facing complaints from transgender people over security screening.

Trans travellers are more likely to experience problems at screening, it is claimed.

Many are being failed by new full-body scanners, which often result in trans passengers being subjected to humiliating searches.

Passengers complained of invasive searches or being told by security staff to expose their GENITALS before they were allowed to pass.

The body scanners detect non-metal anomalies on passengers like drugs – but features such as "mis-determined" genitalia may cause false readings, a report found.

I WOULDN'T TRUST BORIS WITH MY SIS

JEREMY Paxman says Boris Johnson is someone "you wouldn't trust alone with your sister".

And he has also branded Bojo's predecessor Theresa May a "cornucopia of failure".

The feared interviewer (below), 69, has said the standard of prime ministers is going down, and he lambasts David Cameron for his decision to hold a referendum on EU membership but says Theresa May and Boris Johnson are no better!

The former Newsnight presenter said that his successors as prime minister have lowered the bar further.

Writing in Radio Times Paxo said: "I used to think David Cameron the worst PM in modern times. Then he was succeeded by that cornucopia of failure, Theresa May. Now we find ourselves required to entrust the country to a man you wouldn't trust alone with your sister."

AFTER a dismal start England looked like they were heading to an embarrassing defeat in the third Ashes Test at Headingley.

But they snatched victory from the jaws of defeat thanks to an amazing performance by Ben Stokes.

With team-mates Joe Root and Joe Denly, Stokes painstakingly ate into the total then launched an incredible attack when all looked lost to guide England to an extraordinary win as the nation roared with delight.

By ROY DURRIDGE

The series is now level at 1-1, with one draw, and two matches to play and who knows, there could be even more drama and heroics to come.

And why not? History shows us sport has thrown up quite a few surprises...

LEICESTER 2016

IT'S hard to put into words just how unexpected Leicester City becoming the 2015/16 Premier League champions was. Having escaped relegation by just one point a season earlier bookmakers offered odds of 5,000-1 at the start of the season to bag the title.

No bookie had ever paid out such long odds, with The Foxes' eventual victory resulting in the largest payout in British sporting history with total winnings of £25million.

What made Leicester's efforts all the more impressive is that almost every game they won was considered an upset itself as they claimed the scalps of supposedly far better teams along the way.

It turned manager Claudio Ranieri into a hero, restoring his once-tarnished reputation as "The Tinkerman" while boss at Chelsea.

NIKI LAUDA 1976

NIKI Lauda was certainly no underdog. Born into a wealthy family in Austria, at the height of his career he drove for Ferrari, the richest, most powerful team in Formula One at the time.

What makes his story so incredible is the fact that he came back from a truly horrific accident at the Nurburgring in 1976, when he became trapped in the wreckage of his car, inhaling toxic fumes and suffering severe burns to his head.

So bad were his injuries Lauda was read the Last Rites as it was feared he would die. But amazingly, he recovered and returned to the track just six weeks later, driving at Monza with his burns still bandaged.

He only lost the 1976 championship by a point to James Hunt after retiring from the Japanese Grand Prix due to unsafe conditions.

But Lauda then went on to win the 1977 and 1984 titles, for Ferrari and McLaren respectively.

Sadly, he died earlier this year – but his amazing comeback in Formula 1 will never be forgotten.

WIMBLEDON FC 1988

IN 1988, little Wimbledon lined up against First Division winners Liverpool in the FA Cup final.

It was a real David and Goliath number.

On one hand was a club who had dominated English and European football for 10 years, and on the other a tiny club who 10 years earlier had been playing non-league football.

The rise of The Crazy Gang is the stuff of legends and their story climaxed with the most unlikely FA Cup victory in English football history.

They started with luck on their side when a Peter Beardsley goal that would have given Liverpool a 1-0 lead was disallowed.

Then Lawrie Sanchez gave the South Londoners the lead. And when the Reds were handed a dubious penalty, Dons skipper Dave Beasant became the first goalkeeper to save a Cup final penalty as John A. Idrige fluffed his lines.

DENNIS TAYLOR 1985

MILD-mannered Ulsterman Dennis Taylor is an unlikely poster boy for sporting high drama.

But when he took on Steve Davis at Sheffield's Crucible, the pair produced one of the all-time greatest snooker showdowns ever – with 18.5 million people watching on BBC2.

Having won three of the last four World Championships, Davis took the opening eight frames, and a very humbling experience seemed to be on the cards for underdog Taylor.

But Taylor rediscovered his mojo, fighting back to take the ninth frame for what most viewers might have imagined would be a consolation.

Instead, Taylor won five of the next six frames and was able to level the scores at 17-17.

The final frame would take more than an hour to complete but amazingly the match would come down to whoever could sink the black.

After both men struggled to get the deed done, it was finally Dennis who triumphed.

Cue the famous finger-wagging celebration.

LIVERPOOL 2005

LIVERPOOL scraped into the 2004/05 Champions League courtesy of a fourth-place finish in the Premier League.

But an amazing run saw them unexpectedly reach the final after finishing second behind Paris St Germain in their group stage.

Lining up in Istanbul against Inter Milan in Istanbul few pundits gave them a chance.

That expertise appeared to be proved right when they were down 3-0 at half time.

The world wrote them off, but a remarkable second half saw the Reds claw back the deficit thanks to a remarkable performance from Stephen Gerrard.

At the end it was Inter who were clinging on for extra time and penalties which Liverpool won, sealing one of the most remarkable comebacks in sporting history.

JOHN DALY 1991

GOING into the 1991 USPGA Championship, John Daly was not only unknown – he wasn't even playing.

But then Nick Price withdrew to be at the birth of his first child and so a chain of events began which led to golf's Rocky moment.

Eight players on the alternates list could not get to Crooked Stick, Indianapolis to replace Price, but the ninth reserve got in his car, drove through the night and arrived on the Thursday.

Daly had never seen the course, but Price's caddy Jeff Medlin was still on site and having done all the reconnaissance, agreed to work that week for Daly.

With his blond hair and "grip it and rip it" mentality, Daly became an instant crowd favourite and with their backing went on to beat odds of 1000-1 to win the major.

A superstar was born. True, a lot of Wild Thing's fame would come for the wrong reasons – he's said to have blown over £40m on booze, gambling and women – but he won the 1995 Open at St Andrews to prove he was no fluke.

FIONAVON AT AINTREE 1967

THERE have been a few 100/1 outsiders that have won the Grand National.

But Foinavon is the most celebrated simply because it looked so unlikely as the race reached the 23rd fence.

It was then that a loose horse veered to its right, causing a pile-up that brought the field to a virtual stop.

Foinavon had been so far behind that it missed the melee and ran past the chaos – taking the lead with just six fences remaining.

Quite literally against the odds, the horse went on to clinch the most unlikely of victories – one which has gone down in Aintree history.

AIN'T it cute when girls copy their older sisters?

And it's just the same for celebrity siblings, too.

Miley Cyrus is famous around the world for flashing her teats – and her little tufty fanny, to boot – as well as making fine pop records and not wanting to be Liam Hemsworth's wife any more.

Needless to say, the 26-year-old's sister Noah, 19, also wanted to get in on the

But as she recently turned 45, the fashion world has turned to her younger sister Lottie, 21.

And Lottie seems to have stepped into her older sis's shoes as she was papped in a revealing white corset on a night out.

THE Howe twins have graced the Playboy mansion and even reportedly wowed plenty of famous footballers with their jaw-dropping curves.

'Snowflakes' blasted over Blyton snub

SOCIAL media users criticised "snowflakes" for blocking an Enid Blyton commemorative coin, accusing them of "rewriting history".

The children's author was denied the honour of a commemorative coin after Royal Mint bosses branded the creator of the Famous Five and Secret Seven novels a "racist homophobe", in documents released last week.

Birmingham-based Prof Kehinde Andrews appeared on Good Morning Britain to argue the author isn't "worthy" of the honour.

Viewers argued Blyton still deserved to be recognised, with one telling Andrews to "get a life" and suggesting "snowflakes" who are against the idea are too easily offended.

Kehinde said: "The reason why Enid isn't worthy...it's just widely inappropriate, she was racist, her books were racist."

Twitter went into meltdown with viewers arguing that Blyton's views were simply a product of her time.

One said: "Enid Blyton wrote for the audience in HER era I'd hate to think about what we are going to be judged on in 50 years!"

Another said: "The snowflakes are out in force this morning."

WOMEN

JUDY BUENOANO

AT 7.01am on March 30, 1998, 54-year-old grandmother Judy Buenoano was strapped into the three-legged electric chair known as Old Sparky.

The chair had been given the nickname because its victims' heads had been known to catch fire when it was switched on.

Beneath a black hood, a wet sponge between her shaved head and leather skull cap was supposed to ensure that she felt no pain when an anonymous

By JUSTIN DUNN news@sundaysport.co.uk

U.S. citizen flipped a switch to begin the execution of the condemned criminal.

That action delivered lethal 2,600 volts of electricity through the woman's body at the Florida state prison in the northern town of Starke.

The convicted murderer, known as "The Black Widow", was the first woman to face capital punishment in Florida for 150 years, since a black slave called Celia was hanged for stabbing her owner to death in 1848, and only the third woman executed in the U.S. since the death penalty was reinstated in 1976.

But unlike the outcry over the lethal injection execution a month earlier of born-again Christian Karla Faye Tucker in Texas, Mrs Buenoano's fate created little attention.

She was not as photogenic as Tucker, rarely spoke to the media, and was far from a "cause celebre".

And then there was the terrible nature of her crimes.

A former nurse, manicurist and cocktail waitress, Buenoano was first convicted of attempted murder in

EVIL:
Black Widow Buenoano was tried in Old Sparky

MYRA Hindley. Rose West. Beverley Allitt. The names of notorious women serial killers are often chillingly too easy to remember.

When the fairer sex – if they're still allowed to be called that – commit murder, it always has us scratching our heads.

If a bloke gets arrested for murder, it's somehow easier to assume that he's automatically guilty. When it's a woman, not so much.

Unless there is incontrovertible, gob-smacking evidence to the contrary.

There are of course more femme fatales around the world than we may want to know.

Unlike Hindley, West, and Allitt, though, their heinous crimes have largely disappeared onto obscure websites and the memories of victims' relatives.

To reflect on that, today we launch a new, terrifying series about real-life women who have committed murder in the most treacherous of ways.

We start in Miami, Florida, in a case that shocked the United States and gave birth to the moniker – The Black Widow.

1983 after her fiancé, John Gentry, survived a car bomb in the Florida city of Pensacola.

He told police she had earlier given him pills, saying they were vitamins, but which turned out to be poisons.

Investigators found Buenoano had taken out a £300K life insurance policy on Mr Gentry.

That led police to take a look back into what had previously been adjudged accidental deaths of her husband, U.S. Air Force Sergeant James Goodyear in 1971 and her 19-year-old handicapped son Michael in 1980.

In both cases, she had collected insurance money.

After the Gentry case, a post-mortem on Sgt Goodyear's exhumed body revealed that he had been poisoned with arsenic.

Prosecutors then tried Mrs Buenoano over the drowning death of her son.

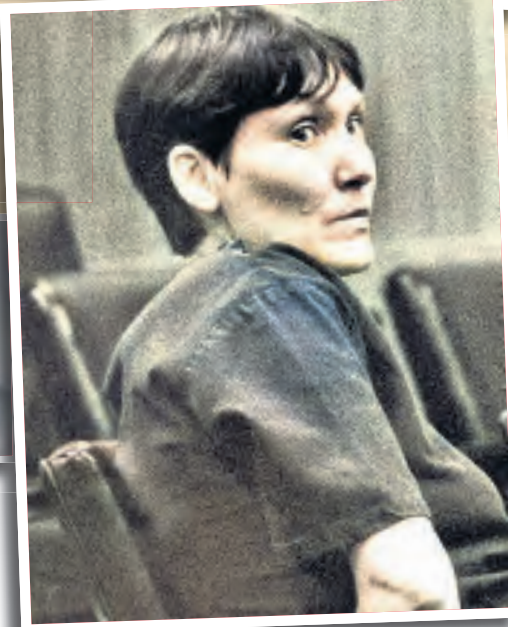

Fishing

She had claimed Michael had fallen out of a canoe on a fishing trip, his leg braces pulling him under the surface.

But the court ruled that she had pushed him overboard to collect insurance money. A later examination also revealed that he had swallowed arsenic.

VICTIMS: John Gentry and James Goodyear were poisoned by Buenoano (right, in court during her trial)

Prosecutors in Colorado then said that they had evidence she poisoned another boyfriend with arsenic in 1978.

But they decided not to file murder charges after she was given the death sentence in Florida.

Buenoano had been on death row since 1985.

She received a first stay of execution in 1990 after Old Sparky, carved from a single oak tree and in use since 1923, belched smoke and sparks during the execution of Jesse Tafero. That led to a temporary halt in executions.

Then, a year before the Black Widow's execution, flames a foot long burst from the hood of Pedro Medina after the chair short-circuited during his execution.

Witnesses were shocked, and executions were halted again.

Experts concluded that Medina had died instantly without feeling pain – without, of course, knowing whether that was true or not.

Leo Jones, a Death Row inmate, challenged the use of the chair, saying it represented "cruel and unusual punishment" under the U.S. Constitution.

But the Florida Supreme Court ruled against him, and the state legislature voted to retain the chair.

Governor Lawton Chiles signed the bill into law just days before the execution was due, which effectively ended Buenoano's chances of her death being postponed.

Jones was executed, as was serial killer Gerald Stano, who had admitted killing 41 women.

In both cases Old Sparky, after an overhaul by electricians, worked smoothly.

Karla Faye Tucker, who married her prison chaplain and gave regular TV and newspaper interviews before her execution in Texas in February 1998, became a symbol for opponents of the death penalty.

She gained clemency pleas from the Pope, Jesse Jackson and the TV evangelist Pat Robertson. But Buenoano, kept virtually silent, although maintaining her innocence.

Wardens at Broward Correctional Institution in Pembroke Pines, just north of Miami, say she had spent her last few days crocheting or knitting baby clothes which her daughter, Kimberly Hawkins, sold.

Abused

And unlike the Tucker case, there were no demonstrations against Buenoano's execution, and no sign of outcry in Florida or elsewhere.

During one of her hearings, Buenoano, who was born in Texas and whose mother died when she was four, said she had been physically and sexually abused during her youth by relatives she stayed with.

Unlike Tucker, she had not tried to play the religious card although she insisted she was a devout Roman Catholic.

She said she would prefer to die than spend her life behind the drab grey walls of the Broward jail, where her only companions – during exercise hours – were two other women Death Row inmates. The trio called themselves Las Tres Amigas – The Three Friends.

Her last, simple meal was a salad of broccoli, tomato and asparagus, with a cup of tea.

Her last words? "Vaya con Dios" – Go with God.

DIRTY DOC: Whipp's Cross Hospital

TOP DOC'S DOG PORN SHAME!

A LEADING doctor has been struck off after cops found he had downloaded porn featuring someone performing a sex act on a dog.

Manish Gupta, 48, was also found to have watched vile footage featuring extreme violence against women, as well as cartoon porn of kids as young as four.

Gupta was the man responsible for writing NHS guidelines on how health professionals should care for women who have suffered genital mutilation.

Now he has been banned from the medical register at a disciplinary hearing over the "vile and disgusting" images.

At the Medical Practitioners Tribunal Service, in Manchester, it was heard how Gupta's wife reported him after finding a laptop containing thousands of adult porn images.

Violent

Some of the images detailed women being subjected to violent sexual abuse.

A work laptop later seized by investigators uncovered cartoon-style child porn.

Panel chair Rachel Wedderspoon said: "The public would be shocked to learn of the deplorable nature of the images viewed by Dr Gupta, especially given his work in the field and his contribution to the guidelines in the area of FGM."

Gupta, who was an obstetrician at Whipp's Cross hospital in east London, pleaded guilty to possessing indecent images and extreme pornography.

The medic was sentenced to a 24-month community order and unpaid work.

Ms Wedderspoon said: "Dr Gupta knew real women and animals were being abused in the images he viewed."

"He failed to recognise the women's humanity, as well as the welfare of the animals."

The Royal College of Obstetricians and Gynaecologists said Gupta had stepped down as co-chair of its guidelines committee. Mr Gupta claimed his porn habit was down to abuse he suffered as a child.

TAKE That, Drake and the Backstreet Boys have all sold fewer tickets than Korean boyband BTS.

The K-pop band was the third biggest-selling live act in the UK, according to ticket selling site StubHub.

They were only beaten by the Spice Girls and Pink on the live events index.

The reunion tour of the 1990s girl band sold double the number of tickets of the second most popular artist Pink.

BTS had two of the top five best-selling gigs of the year with their Wembley Stadium shows in June.

They were followed by Drake and Post Malone.

Roisin O'Shea of StubHub UK said: "K-Pop is certainly having its moment in the music scene and is rising in popularity at an unstoppable rate."

Hooker tied to drug deaths of three punters

A HOOKER has been tied to the drug-overdose deaths of three men – including the head chef of a posh restaurant who was found stuffed into a rubbish bin.

It is claimed Angelina Barini, 41, plied her clients with drugs, including the powerful opioid fentanyl, during hook-ups at seedy hotels in New York.

In the space of a week, two of the men died but Barini and her pimp allegedly continued to drug her customers, and even robbed some of them once they were dosed.

The first death was on July 4 at a hotel in Astoria, Queens, where Barini was caught leaving the room on CCTV. The man died of a lethal cocktail of booze, meth, cocaine, and fentanyl, it's said.

On July 11, a second man was found dead of a fentanyl overdose at another hotel in Queens, where Barini was again allegedly caught on videotape.

Police looking for Andrea Zamperoni (above), who ran the kitchen at posh Cipriani Dolci, in Manhattan, found him dead with Barini still in the hotel in Queens.

Barini has been locked up pending trial.

Woman charged after nude brawl at petrol station

A WOMAN has been charged with assault and disorderly conduct after assaulting someone while NAKED at a petrol station.

According to a news release posted to Facebook by police, cops had responded to a report of two women fighting.

Officers took into custody a 47-year-old woman who "walked into the store with no clothes on and assaulted another customer and threw displays to the ground".

The woman was carted off to hospital to be evaluated.

A police source in St Cloud, Minnesota, said: "She'd drunk a heap of beer and smoked God knows what."

MANIAC BEAT MUM'S BRAINS OUT - THEN HAD SEX WITH HER CORPSE

STUNNING Daisy Lowe teased fans yesterday with a sexy low-cut top that barely contained her busters.

The 30-year-old model was snapped near her house in Primrose Hill, north London, wearing a very low cut frock.

A source said: "Oh my God she looked amazing."

"Every step she took was a wobbly wonderland!"

SICKO Lindsey Turiano beat his mum to death and then had sex with her corpse.

The 58-year-old was arrested after police were tipped off that a burglary was taking place.

When they got there they found Turiano collapsed next to the decomposing body of his mother, Norma Woods, 89.

Police found blood splattered on the walls, as well as pieces of bone and tissue attached to a knife.

They believe Woods's body was dragged through the house.

A police report said: "The victim's head was completely obliterated to the point that she was unrecognisable as a person."

"Most of her skull and brain were missing."

Officers found pieces of skull in the living room and large dark stains on the carpet that appear to be blood.

Stripped

Turiano was taken to hospital by police but arrested when he admitted to a doctor that he had killed his mother.

Cops then quizzed Turiano who admitted he attacked, strangled and beat his mum with a stick.

Detectives say he also said he stripped her naked and had sex with her body.

Norma's neighbour Cheryl Black said: "She's been there my whole life. I'm used to her being there. It's a hard pill to swallow."

"I mean could you imagine if your own offspring did that to you."

"That's just terrible. Nobody deserves that."

The police report into the incident said: "Once dead the defendant dragged the victim into the back room and again engaged in sexual acts with the deceased victim."

Investigators reckon Turiano then remained lying on the floor in a catatonic state until a few days later when police discovered him and his dead mother's body.

Turiano, from San Antonio, Texas, has been charged with murder.

A police source said: "This is one sick bastard. Killing your mother is bad enough but having sex with her corpse is taking things to another level."

THE WORLD FAMOUS AGONY Page

Dear Ashleigh,

ME and my friend are both blonde, 18, and adore having wild sex. We've always wanted to take part in an all-out orgy and be fked by loads of men.

Well, the other Saturday night we got our wish after meeting a gang of lads in our local pub.

After a few drinks and a good laugh, they invited us back to one of their houses.

My knickers were soaking with my fanny-juice by the time three of them stripped me and I soon had cocks in every hole.

We both ended up shagging all of them at one time or another over the night.

But since then these blokes have been horrible to us, calling us slags.

We're thinking of moving away. Do you think we should?

CF, Notts

Ashleigh says...

NO, why should you? You like sex - so what? It's not a crime.

Dear Ashleigh,

MY wife and I recently had a baby and we haven't had sex for a while. So I've been shagging her mum instead.

She recently got divorced and has still got a lovely body. She's brilliant in bed and loves giving me blowjobs.

She's more adventurous in bed than my wife. She especially likes to be taken doggy-style while I rub her clit with a vibrator.

She also likes to be shagged while she's tied to the bed with silk scarves. She's also dressed as a kinky nurse.

She started sucking my cock before bent her over a table and started pumping her. We then went upstairs and screwed all afternoon.

I should feel like the happiest man in the world because I'm shagging a nymphomaniac older woman, but I feel so guilty.

If she wasn't my wife's mum I think I'd be okay. In an ideal world, I'd like to have both. What do you think I should do?

MG, Derby

Ashleigh says...

YOUR idea of an ideal world doesn't exist. You have to decide between the two.

Sorry I bonked pal's fella

Dear Ashleigh,

A FEW weeks ago I went to stay with an old college pal and her fella.

She and her boyfriend met me at the train station and the three of us went off to their new home.

We enjoyed more than a few drinks before sitting down for a good meal, accompanied by lashings of vino.

As the night wore on and the alcohol began to take effect, my pal fell asleep in her armchair.

I was sitting beside her bloke and I was more than a bit startled when his hand started to tease my thigh.

We left my chum dozing and went to the kitchen, where her bloke started snogging me.

And that was it. No more, or less, than our gang used to get up to at student parties.

The following morning I was in the shower and feeling horny, when the cubicle door opened and her boyfriend seized me in his arms and gave me a rodding over the bath.

It was fantastic, instant gratification, but although I enjoyed it I can't help but fear what might happen when I next visit.

How can I avoid breaking my pal's heart?

EC, Merseyside

Ashleigh says....

IF you can't trust yourself, don't even think about visiting again but keep in touch by email or letter.

WELCOME to the World famous Sport Agony page! No other newspaper's agony aunts can offer the level of advice – or experience – than our own Agony Angels! This week ASHLEIGH GEE has been reading through your letters. And here's her advice for you...

DO YOU HAVE A SEX PROBLEM?

I worry I might keep riding my biker boss

Dear Ashleigh,

I'VE just been offered the chance of a new job in a clothes shop.

My mate used to work there and she told me the boss was quite a stud and she'd ridden him on quite a few occasions.

She said he's married but is quite indiscreet about his roving eye and is always on the sniff for a fresh conquest.

Since I hadn't had a lot of luck with my husband lately (he's always drunk or watching football), I decided this could be a way of killing two birds with one stone.

So I went for the interview. I wore my sexiest outfit – a short skirt that would ride up high enough to show off my stocking tops, a pair of high-heels and a low-cut top.

I was pretty excited to meet this sexy guy, and when I did I wasn't disappointed.

He was nearing 50 I'd say but still well fit, and rides a big old Triumph motorbike.

The interview went really well and I caught him ogling my long legs and my cleavage more than a few times.

Gusset

Afterwards he insisted on taking me out to lunch at a country pub.

I rode on the back of his powerful bike and by the time we got to the pub, I was already wet in the gusset. Instead of going in the pub, I led him into the garden area at the back where we hid behind some trees.

I pulled down his leather trousers to get a better look at his cock...and it was MASSIVE – at least nine inches long. I licked it tentatively before wrapping my lips around it and sucking for all I was worth.

He told me I had great legs and not to waste any more time, to get them spread. I bent over a bench and when he entered my dripping fanny I was in absolute heaven.

He kept pumping away until I could take no more and I could barely walk afterwards.

I don't know whether to take the job or not because I know I'll be unfaithful again to my hubby all the time.

If he found out it would destroy him – but I don't think I can resist my older biker man.

Any advice please?

LK, Bristol

Ashleigh says...

TAKE the job but try to settle for the occasional shag.

Dear Ashleigh,

I'm a 40-year-old, fairly average-looking man but I'm also the proud owner of a thick 10-inch knob.

When an office night out was organised recently, I was held up and unable to catch the transport to the do.

One of the lads suggested I could take a bath and change at his house, and then his wife would drive me to the party in their car.

His wife is a right corks and after she showed me to the bathroom I undressed and climbed in the water.

After a few minutes there was a knock at the door and she asked if she could bring a towel in for me.

I reluctantly said OK, and tried to hide my privates with a flannel.

When she entered, she was starkers. I was shocked but she just got in the bath and reached under the water to swipe away the flannel and grab my cock, which as you can imagine jerked to stiffness in pleasurable surprise.

"Wow," she said before wanking my throbbing manhood and then giving me an expert blowjob, sucking hard on the helmet and massaging my tightening ballbag.

She knew what she was doing and stopped just before I came. Then she lowered herself onto my cock, screaming out loud as I stretched her fanny wide.

She came a few times before I finally pulled out and shot my load on her pretty face and huge tits.

Afterwards, she dropped me off at the party. But a couple of days later she rang to say her hubby wants to watch me shagging her.

I'm uneasy about this. I mean, I like the guy, and his wife's a top shag, but it seems weird. What should I do?

HR, East London

Ashleigh says...

GIVE them both a lesson they'll never forget.

Dear Ashleigh,

I'm a student and, as you can imagine, money is tight, so to save on the rent, I've been shagging my landlord.

I knew from the start that he fancied me as he often complimented me on my figure and said: "Blondes with big tits are just my type."

At first it was okay, blowjobs and doggy-style mainly, but in the past few weeks his demands have become a bit perverse.

A couple of weeks ago he asked to tie me up, gagged me and spanked me before he spunked all over my back.

And the last time we were together he asked to tie me up again so he could take me up the arse.

I refused this point-blank – and also a suggestion that he could bring a couple of his pals around for an orgy.

Actually, I have to admit that the idea does turn me on, but I'm a bit wary of going with strangers.

What do you think?

FT, North London

Ashleigh says...

FIND somewhere else to live and find the money to pay your rent – then get an orgy on your own terms.

#MY SEX FANTASY

'Being with a guy and a girl is the best of both worlds!'

...WITH
ANGEL
WICKY, 31
32DD-26-36
FROM READING

I ABSOLUTELY love threesomes. I once had a kinky ménage-a-trois in the sea on holiday!

I went on a girly break to Ibiza and ended up going into the water with a bloke and my sexy blonde female mate.

We were just mucking about skinny-dipping and next thing I knew we were all snogging and hands were wandering.

I was so hot when the guy started shagging me from behind as I was kissing the girl and playing with her boobs. Women's bodies are beautiful, soft and smooth and it's a very sensual experience being with them.

Being with a guy and a girl is literally the best of both worlds.

I've had threesomes with two guys too. That's more animalistic... when you've got cocks coming at you and in all holes!

They're such fun. If you can think of a dozen positions with one person, there are 10 times more with three of you!

VIKKI THOMAS

By SIMON DEAN
simon@sundaysport.co.uk

TOPLESS legend Vikki Thomas is proof that glamour girls are more than just a great pair of BOOBS.

The busty blonde was also a top actress and telly presenter.

Vikki, 37, was working on an exhibition stand in the late 1990s when an intrepid photographer noticed her impressive 36DD talents.

And she went on to enjoy a career as a top model – thanks to Sunday Sport!

Just a few months after her first topless shoot, Vikki left her home town of Weston-super-Mare in Somerset and became a London party girl.

She made her Hollywood debut in 2001's Tabloid TV opposite actor John Hurt.

The big-hearted beauty supports charity work, giving her time to Arthritis Research Campaign and Cancer Research.

Vikki said: "I'll always love the Sport. It's just such a fun paper!"

TIME FOR SILVA TO HIT GOLD

I AM old enough to have watched Ian Botham's extraordinary Ashes heroics of 1981 but have never witnessed anything as dramatic or spellbinding as Ben Stokes' 135 at Headingley. Botham had booked out of his hotel and had nothing to lose when he laid into Lillee, Lawson and co but the innings of Stokes was based on a firm defensive foundation before the touch-paper was lit.

I was watching with friends and I noticed Stokes was 2/5 to be named BBC Sports Personality of the Year. I felt Big Ben ought to be 1/50 although I appreciate the egg-chasing World Cup is still to come.

Crickets World Cup winners, Champions League winners, Europa League winners with the distinct possibility of F1 World Champion, Ashes success and a home nations winner of the Rugby World Cup. Note Stokes is now 1/5 with BetVictor to win the coveted BBC award – I still believe that is far too big a price!

The Sky cameras are at a sold-out Sincil Bank Lincoln this evening to see if the League One side can upset Premier League Everton. The Blues have made a poor start to the season despite picking up four points and dominating possession in both their away games. Marco Silva's side have lacked any creativity, however, and Theo Walcott's abject miss at Villa Park on Friday summed up Everton's travails in front of goal.

This is a big week for Marco Silva. If the Blues comfortably make the third round and pick up maximum points against Wolves at Goodison on Sunday, then seven points will be a decent enough return.

Avenge

Defeats in either of the next couple of games and it will have been a deeply disappointing start to the campaign and the possibility of Everton breaking into the top six already looks highly unlikely.

Evertonians hope Moise Kean will make a similar impact to Sebastian Haller whose brace for West Ham at the weekend suggested he could make a big impact. Kean is 9/4 to be Everton's top PL scorer with Richardson 5/2 and Gylfi Sigurdsson 11/4. It can surely only be a matter of time before the latter is dropped.

Everton are 1/2 to beat the Imps with Danny Cowley's side 11/2 to avenge their 2-1 defeat at Goodison in the FA Cup 3rd Round back in January. Silva looks sure to make changes with Alex Iwobi, Tom Davies and possibly Cenk Tosun getting starts at Sincil Bank.

Joelinton has been cut from 5/2 to 5/4 at BetVictor to end the season as top scorer for Newcastle after his winner at the new Spurs Stadium on Sunday. The Brazilian is reported to be a doubt for the Magpies at St James' Park this evening when they entertain Leicester City in the only all-Premier League tie of the round.

The Foxes are a good side on the road and the Magpies will have to play a more expansive game than they did in the capital on Sunday. I expect Brendan Rodgers' to field a strong side and punters have latched on to the Foxes who are 5/4 to win the game in 90 minutes.

ON MISSION:
Steve Bruce

It's 44 years of hurt for Bruce

TOON BOSS STILL SORE ABOUT LEAGUE CUP LOSS

STEVE Bruce is desperate to take Newcastle to Wembley – to end his own 44 years of hurt.

The Toon boss was a 14-year-old ballboy when they lost the League Cup final to Manchester City in 1976.

Bruce was playing for Newcastle Schools at the time and was picked to head south for the big match.

The Toon were beaten 2-1 by Manchester City and the gaffer has never got over it.

He starts off in the Carabao Cup against Leicester determined to get back to the final – and win this time.

Bruce said: "I was there,

By PAUL THOMAS

yes. I was a ball boy, at Wembley.

"I was selected. I was with Newcastle Schools and there were six of us drawn out of a hat, and I was one of them.

"It was not a happy time, I have to tell you, when he did that. It was a great goal, mind you, but I wasn't very happy at the time."

Newcastle have now clocked up 50 years without a trophy and have been beaten in two FA Cup finals since that day.

While many bosses think the Carabao Cup is a pain in the rear, Bruce is targeting the competition to end the club's wait for a domestic honour that goes back to 1955.

He added: "The cup competitions for any Premier League team – I learned this a few years ago – you only have to win four or five games to get there.

Injuries

"We saw Watford get to the FA Cup final last year. It is something we will take seriously, so let's see if we can get through.

"If Hull is capable of getting to a final and maintaining its Premier League status, then a club like this can too, surely?"

Bruce does have a raft of injuries to deal with though after Saturday's battling 1-0 win at Tottenham.

Jamaal Lascelles is the main issue but Fabian Schar, Allan Saint-Maximin, Christian Atsu, Miguel Almiron and scorer Joelinton are carrying knocks too.

Bruce is confident he has enough manpower to put out a strong side against the Foxes.

He added: "We have a squad of 25 players, but I couldn't put four or five more in there.

"But we are big enough to make a few changes.

"I had experienced players sitting behind me at Spurs, and some weren't even stripped on Sunday, so we can still give it a real go."

MOURA GUNS FOR ARSENAL

LUCAS Moura says Spurs will get their season on track — by stuffing Arsenal this weekend.

Tottenham were shocked 1-0 at home by Newcastle and there's already whispers about things not being right at White Hart Lane. Boss Mauricio Pochettino was short with the press after that defeat leading to increased talk of him being ready to walk out.

Although they managed to earn a precious point at Manchester City, Spurs have also pushed all the way by Aston Villa on opening weekend.

But Moura is determined to prove the doubters wrong by winning the north London derby this weekend.

He said: "Is this the perfect game for us to have after the Newcastle defeat? Yes.

"We need to look forward now. There are a lot of hard games to come.

"We lost against Newcastle but I am sure we have the quality to go to Arsenal and come back with three points. That's what we must try to do.

"Each game is different. This is a new season and we have new players. I think we are stronger now. I am sure we can go anywhere and win games.

"For sure it was a very bad result against Newcastle. We tried but it was very difficult to play against them, especially as they kept everyone behind the ball after they scored.

"It was difficult to find the space in the air and the ground because everyone was in the box. I missed a very clear opportunity and I am upset about this.

"We need to get back to work this week and win the next game against Arsenal."

For the Gunners, David Luiz has come in for lots of stick after his abject display at Anfield in their 3-1 defeat against Liverpool.

He gave away a silly penalty by pulling Mo Salah's shirt before the Egyptian roasted him on the way to scoring his second goal.

Moura is likely to come up against Luiz in the derby but it won't be easy — because the pair are best mates.

Stronger

The Spurs striker is backing his pal to bounce back from his iffy showing against the Reds.

Moura said: "David is a very experienced player and knows how to go through this situation. He will be stronger very soon.

"I am happy for him because it was a good transfer for him to make. I am also happy because he is closer to me now. He can come visit me at my home easier because when he was at Chelsea, he was so far away.

"But on Sunday he will be my opponent, I will work and do the best for my team to get three points. On the pitch it is different. It doesn't matter who the opponent is, I need to do my best and try to win.

"Was I surprised he left Chelsea for Arsenal? That's football. Anything can happen. Chelsea fans are not happy. But everyone needs to do their choice and they need to respect them."

DEMOLITION DERBY: Lucas Moura

NOT READY: Griffiths

Comeback kid Griff left out by Scotland

RED-HOT Celtic hitman Leigh Griffiths has been left out of Scotland's squad to take on Russia and Belgium.

Despite scoring three times since returning from his break after suffering mental health issues.

Tartan Army chief Steve Clarke has decided to go with Steven Naismith despite the Hearts striker missing the past two games with a hamstringing issue.

The boss said: "I feel we should just give him a little bit more time to settle into the role again at Celtic.

"A fully fit, firing, sharp Leigh Griffiths will always be good for us.

"He was close. Leigh has got some fantastic attributes.

"I just look at him just now and he's come a long way in a short space of time after a very difficult spell in his life.

"At the moment I just feel it's a little bit too early to push him."

The other headline is the return of Robert Snodgrass after more than a year out in the cold.

The West Ham schemer said he didn't want to play for Scotland while Alex McLeish was in charge.

But he's happy to be back in the fold now Clarke has taken the reins.

At the back, several regulars like Scott McKenna and John Souttar are missing so Grant Hanley, Liam Cooper and Charlie Mulgrew are the only central defenders in the squad.

Rangers midfielder Ryan Jack is back, with Craig McGillivray earning his first call-up.

Pedro blunt for Blades

PEDRO will miss Chelsea's weekend clash with Sheffield United.

The 32-year-old was injured in the warm-up before the 3-2 win against Norwich on Saturday.

He has tweaked a hamstring and has not been able to train.

Captain Cesar Azpilicueta wants to build on that victory.

He said: "I am happy with the team spirit because when you are at Chelsea you play every game to win and when you don't get the win you get frustrated and I am happy for the team, we have been working hard."

BIG BEN BEST EVER SAYS MO

BEN Stokes tops Ian Botham as England's greatest ever all-rounder.

That's the view of Moeen Ali who puts the Durham man above Beefy and Freddie Flintoff in the pecking order.

Stokes clocked an incredible 135 to win the Headingley Test last week and keep the Ashes alive.

Moeen has been dropped from the side thanks to his poor displays.

But he's seen enough of Stokes to put him right on top of the pile. The Worcestershire all-rounder said: "He is the best cricketer I have played alongside, and while it might be a massive shout — and admittedly he is a very close friend — I would argue he is now the greatest all-rounder this country has ever produced.

CRICKET: THE ASHES

"To deliver an innings like the one he played at Headingley, just six weeks after winning us the World Cup final and with the Ashes on the line, is what seals it for me. I know there are past greats like Ian Botham and Andrew Flintoff, but we're watching another legend in the making here.

"What we witnessed on Sunday wasn't a fluke.

"Seriously, you will not find a cricketer more dedicated to self-improvement. He trains at 100mph and is just unrelenting with it.

"As a batsman, he has become excellent at judging scenarios. He now has the all-round game and technique to adapt.

"Refusing to celebrate personal milestones sums him up, too. It is team first, every time."

Stokes could be backed up by James Anderson in the fourth Test at Old Trafford next week.

The Lancashire seamer is desperate to play at his home ground and is playing for the county's second XI this week in a bid to prove his fitness.

He came through a match last week and hopes his muscle problems are behind him.

Anderson is likely to replace Chris Woakes should he be passed fit.
